Description

The imposing group of buildings at Bertsdorf Station dates from the time when it was the seat of the railway administration of the former ZOJE. Today the site is still used intensively by the Interest group of the Zittau narrow gauge railway association and, for day-to-day operations, by the Zittau Narrow-Gauge Railway. On open museum station days, the engine shed with various vehicles, the goods shed with an exhibition and other ancillary buildings are open to visitors. This is aimed at all families!

In addition, from 1 May to 31 October, the association presents more interesting facts about the history of the Zittau narrow-gauge railways in its small railway museum in the goods shed at Oybin station, open Tuesday to Friday from 13:00 to 16:00 and at weekends from 13:00 to 17:00.

Many events in Bertsdorf are held jointly by the Interest group of the Zittau narrow gauge railway association and SOEG.
